Belton, Mo.: Traditional Values, Exceptional Service

Streamlined Economic Development Services Position This Historic Community for New Growth.

The City of Belton is dedicated to economic development and the advancement of our community. The City has changed its economic development strategy and now has an in-house Economic Development Department. We are fully staffed and we are open for business. Whether your business calls Belton home, or you are looking to start, expand or relocate your business, our department is here to help you succeed.

Managing Change: Belton Towne Center demonstrates the city's commitment to effectively addressing the needs of a growing population.

We are ready to explore with you all possible development opportunities in the great City of Belton. Experience our one-stop, streamlined experience in the Economic Development Department, and see for yourself how we can help you with land planning, building inspection and permitting. We will provide a single departmental contact throughout the entire development process. This will ensure a smooth, responsive development experience that will maximize business profit.

This historic community is located just 17 miles south of Kansas City, Missouri, in beautiful Cass County. More than 140 years after its founding, Belton is a prime example of how a growing city committed to its heritage can embrace and manage significant growth. That's not an idle boast; ask any of our 23,116 residents. We're confident they'll tell you they have the best of both small-town charm and access to big-city amenities.

Only minutes away from the heart of Belton, you'll find the famed Country Club Plaza, easily accessible by one of the newest stretches of interstate in the nation: I-49. We're also conveniently located adjacent to Southern Johnson County, and we sit less than two miles from the Centerpoint Intermodal Facility and the Government Services Administration building.

Embracing Change: Memorial Station, a new state-of-the-art community center, has bolstered the role of Memorial Park in community affairs.

Our Economic Development Department's main priorities are you, because your success is our success. We will use all available services and resources to ensure that the City of Belton remains and continually develops as a great location for businesses.

Proud Traditions: Belton has maintained its small-town feel for more than 140 years, even as impressive growth has swelled the local population.

For more information about how we can put our resources to work for you and your business, please contact Jay Leipzig, AICP, directly at 816-331-4331. We invite you to learn how Belton can help you grow your business, from initial consultation all the way through permitting and future expansion.
